

16th April 2020

Greetings friends, I was wondering what people who were due to have a holiday at this time are doing, now we are confined to home, shopping or short periods of exercise?

Whilst flicking through the many, mainly useless, TV channels the other day, I happened upon a programme which was about a hot air balloon journey across part of Yorkshire. There was no music, no talking, simply views from the balloon as it sailed majestically over the beautiful scenery below. When I found it, it had been running for half an hour and according to the schedule was due to run for another hour and a half. It was glorious, some of the best TV I've seen in ages! I do hope I can find that channel again and discover some more programmes like that. If you can't get out of the house, this surely is the next best thing.

Attached are this weekend's Collect, Psalm and Readings, the Sunday Mass for Easter Season (which we shall be using for the next few weeks) and the hymns for Sunday Easter 2 (see Sunday Mass pages for the downloads)

And finally...Anonymous friend strikes again!

I went to the doctor the other day and said: "Have you got anything for wind?" So he gave me a kite.
