Greetings friends, I'm on holiday again next week! We had planned to go up to the cottage but with the current situation the building work is a long way behind and it's still not habitable, very frustrating. So it looks like the Vicarage garden will take another hammering, weather permitting.

I've been taking a bit of time to count my blessings, as it were. There have been so many things for us to be negative about but I've been very pleased to see, much positive stuff too. So many inventive and artistic people have taken to opportunity to use their gifts and skills to share some fun, laughter, hints and tips with others, that have made things a bit more bearable over the last few weeks.

I was thinking that there might be some mileage in sharing some of the things we've learned, either by e-mail or perhaps when we are allowed to meet up again, could be interesting! Let me know what you think.

Tom.
